

THE ROOSEVELTS' REACH PINE KNOT

Arrive at North Garden in the Pullman Car Signet.

GUNS AND BIRD DOG IN OUTFIT

The Bird Season Opens in Albemarle To-Day and the President Can Hardly Resist Taking a New Shot. Wore Military Coat.

Special to The Times-Dispatch. (By Telegram.) CHARLOTTE, N.C., October 31.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt, on their way to Pine Knot, their little cottage home in Southern Albemarle, which Mrs. Roosevelt purchased from the Wilkes some months ago, reached Charlotte at 2:30 this afternoon, on the United States fast mail train over the Southern Railway. They were accompanied by Surgeon-General Hickey and Secretary Latta, and a secret service man, and occupied the private Pullman car which was attached to the rear of the train.

The fact that the President was alone in the train was known to only a few persons at the depot, and from that point on a glimpse of the chief executive and his wife. The train reached North Garden at 2:45 and the President was accompanied by a guard from the city. Surgeon-General Hickey was the first to alight, followed closely by Mrs. Roosevelt and the President.

In Military Coat.

The President's military coat and sword were seen at the North Garden station. Mrs. Roosevelt was dressed in a black suit with black hat and veil. The President donned his hat to a dozen or so persons standing near and after reaching North Garden. Mr. Wilkes, the owner of the property, advanced to meet Mrs. Roosevelt, and the President, who was dressed in a military coat, followed him to the cottage. The President's military coat was seen at the North Garden station. The President's military coat was seen at the North Garden station.

Guns and a Dog.

It was after sundown when the sprightly pair of horses, a black and a bay, pulled out at the Pine Knot cottage, where the party was heartily welcomed by Charles Hickey and two female servants. The President's military coat was seen at the North Garden station. The President's military coat was seen at the North Garden station.
